“Variety” is a viable description of KAUR’s Information Radio programming heard every Monday-Thursday night from 7-8 p.m. Information Radio is designed to present entertaining and stimulating programs which have some value whether it be of dramatic, social or religious merit.

Monday nights spotlight on “Great Radio Heroes,” a series of exciting adventures with Superman, The Shadow, Dick Tracy and others. The “Open End,” a program featuring discussion on pertinent social issues airs on Tuesday nights. Wednesday night focuses on the experiences, music and rap of the Black American in “The Struggle.”

The title “Radio Smithsonian” while sounding either historical or scientific in nature is in reality a series of programs which delve into the creative nature and thinkings of man. Whether it be the practical aspects of saving money or creative uses of candle making, this Thursday night presentation is enlightening and informative.
